COURSE TOPICS

This course is designed to review the clinical, radiographic and microscopic features of oral lesions encountered in daily practice. Case-based examples will be used to engage participants in a discussion leading to the recognition of common as well as unusual oral soft tissue lesions and gnathic conditions.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

- To identify relevant clinical findings in order to construct a sound differential diagnosis.
- To review the clinical features of oral soft tissue lesions and the radiographic characteristics of gnathic bone diseases.
- To discuss the characteristics of acute and chronic oral ulcerative conditions as well as therapeutic alternatives.

CONTINUING EDUCATION CREDIT

This course has been approved for 7 hours of NYS and AGD credit.
